THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. At an emergency meeting of Chinese Communist leaders to be held in Peiping on 2nd November 1950, MAO Tse-tung will reveal his general mobilization plan for the support of North Korea.
2. As of 16 November MAO believed that full Chinese Communist participation in the Korean war will improve the Chinese Communist international position, will force Western nations to make concessions, and will not cause a world war.
3. As of 15 November the following was the overall Chinese Communist military operations plan for Korea: The main forces of the Chinese Communist 3 and 4 Field Armies and the Capital (sic) Garrison armored and artillery divisions were to advance to and occupy Nangnimsan (126-48, 40-12) area from where attempts will be made by Chinese Communist forces to occupy Tokchon (126-18, 39-46) and Suan (126-22, 38-42) in order to cut off United Nations forces on the west coast.
4. On 13 November commanders of the 24, 25, 26, 37, and 38 Chinese Communist Armies received orders to start moving north to the North Korean battle front by way of Manchuria.
5. On 13 November part of the 25 Army moved north from Chinhua (119-39, 29-07). The main force of the 25 Army was ordered to move from the Iwu (120-03, 29-18) -Chinhua-Lungyu (119-11, 29-03) area, to the Shanghai-Nanking area by 19 November.
6. On 13 November the 2 Tank Division of the 3 Field Army arrived at Sushui from Fukien by railroad.
